

Spring is when you feel like whistling even with a shoe full of slush. ~Doug Larson

Trust

While recently completing a project, my first Missionary album, I realized how thankful I am for the trust my clients have in me. As I sat there cropping these amazing photographs from Korea, I realized that I held the memories of a two-year mission, in the palm of my hands. A pang of nervousness came over me, wondering would I crop out any details that should be preserved? I moved forward and completed two amazing albums for my new client; putting any worry behind. So again, I open this volume of my newsletter with a big thank you to my loyal clients for having faith in not only how I will handle your precious memories, but for giving me creative freedom to do what I love!

Mom and Dad

I have completed the design for my Mother's Day album, (the title page is shown above) and will soon begin work on the Father's Day book I have planned. These little books are just the right size to add your favorite memories of your Mom or Dad. The papers I am using this spring are so much fun! Orders for these trendy little albums, need to be placed by May 1st, 2006.

What's New

This year has already brought with it the opportunity for me to broaden my horizons with the orders of two new albums. I am excited to add to my portfolio, Graduation and Missionary albums. Please contact me for more details, or with ideas of your own. I am always open to new ideas and themes...and check my gallery in the next few weeks, I will be adding these pages to my gallery.

Another new album, launched in time for Mother's Day, the "Good Groceries" recipe book. This book is loaded in my website, and should also be ordered by May 1st if considered a gift for Mom.

Kid's Korner ~ Start em' Now!

I am constantly amazed at the way scrapbooking has enriched my life. Not only did it help me through a tough time in my life, but has given me inspiration and challenges through the constantly changing market. Another very cool perk, is more quality time with my girls.

My six year old started her first album at three years of age. We bought her a little camera at Walgreens. It's a great idea, you buy the camera (less than $15) and pay for developing the film, then they put a new roll of film in each time! Perfect for her to take on field trips, play dates and to family functions. Most of the pictures that she has scrapped, came from her own camera.

Now, my four year old is joining in the fun, recently completing her first few pages! I love sitting down with them, watching their creative energy flow...and seeing the proud look on their faces upon completing their work. I would love to share with my clients how easy this is for kids. Many of the tools I use are kid friendly, and I have found it's a great way to use up old product that is no longer "trendy" for my client albums. Grab your babes and give me a call, I have a ton of album ideas for your little ones!

Thanks for your ideas, and for sharing your world with me...through your memories!
